

New Prenatal Service Direct To Your Home Or Office

For busy working women the pressure of juggling pregnancy and a demanding work schedule can prove a scary undertaking. Established in a bid to relieve this stress and make life easier for thousands of women in London is The Prenatal Company.

Just launched in West London, The Prenatal Company provides a highly personalised, comprehensive and bespoke service, in the comfort of your own home or office. This service greatly reduces pressure faced by many women trying to schedule doctor's appointments and other prenatal classes around their busy work load or personal life.

Sheryl Marjoram is a client of The Prenatal Company currently enjoying this benefit. 'Having Lexie at my side to guide me through the system has been wonderful, having her there to answer my biggest worries and to reassure me like a friend or a family member might, has been invaluable. From helping me understand which exercises are best to helping me choose the perfect place to have my baby - Lexie has been there. She is never more than a phone call away and has made trips to both my office and my home to ensure my pre-natal care never becomes a burden'.

Throughout the UK and London in particular, women are regularly given a number of different midwives throughout their pregnancy, up to and including birth, meaning there are no guarantees that the same midwife will be seen one more than one occasion throughout a pregnancy.

The Prenatal Company however ensures the provision of one midwife for every woman, who will personally provide them with the care they require from pre pregnancy advice through until birth. The benefits to a one midwife approach are that of continual care which can affect labour and mean less intervention (Perinatal Institute 2002).

Furthermore, pregnant women have a whole host of choices available to them throughout their pregnancy, and midwives at The Prenatal Company are particularly experienced in helping women make the right choices for them. Following a thorough assessment, each woman and their partner will be advised on their options.

As well as support and monitoring, The Prenatal Company offers a holistic journey towards birth. With a clear and comprehensive list of services offered including additional precautionary blood tests, each mother-to-be will be guided through their options. The Prenatal Company offers single consultations right through to comprehensive packages so that any level of care can be catered for.

Women who use the services of The Prenatal Company will enjoy an informed and educated pregnancy comforted by the expertise of their personal midwife, offering a smooth and happy transition towards birth. For more information about The Prenatal Company please visit
